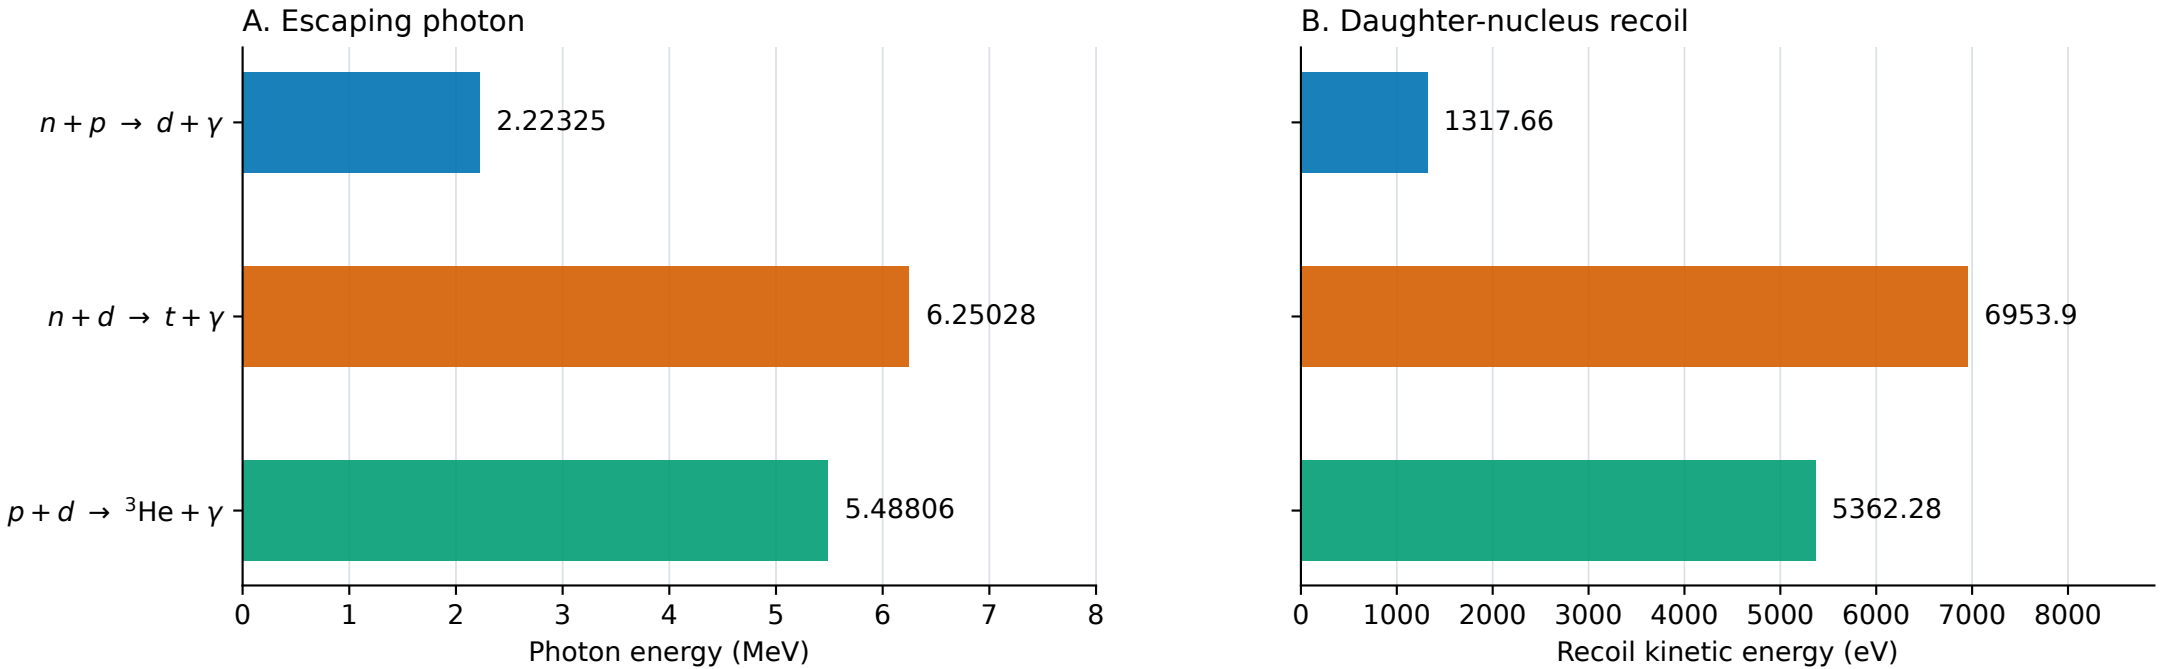
Cold-COM radiative capture: photon and nuclear recoil

K = 0; energies read from the saved independently checked event receipt



Stored arithmetic from rounded CODATA mass entries; labels are rounded for display. Physical uncertainties and covariance are not propagated.

Recoil is the available daughter kinetic energy; its thermal deposition requires an explicit supplied fraction, not shown here.

Cold center-of-momentum event kinematics only: no nuclear rate activation, finite-temperature average, or photon transport calculation.